

Head To The Hot Springs

While any time of the year is a good time to visit one of Colorado’s many hot springs, January is a great way to experience the coldest part of winter in Mother Earth’s hottest geothermal pools. The Centennial State is home to several primitive, commercial, and even clothing-optional hot springs. Popular sites include Strawberry Park Hot Springs, Glenwood Hot Springs, and Mount Princeton Hot Springs.

If you’re looking for a free activity and are willing to hike a little bit, head out to a primitive hot spring and maybe even enjoy the natural pools all to yourself. No matter if you opt for developed or undeveloped, be sure to bring your swimsuit, a towel, warm layers, and extra water to rehydrate after your dip.

How To Keep Your New Year Resolution

- Make it realistic: Set goals that you believe you can achieve. For example, don't resolve to never eat your favorite food again.
- Plan ahead: Don't wait until New Year's Eve to make your resolution.
- Set small, actionable goals: Use the SMART method to create goals that are specific, measurable, attainable, relevant, and time bound.
- Find accountability partners: Ask friends and family to support you and cheer you on.
- Create a reward system: Reward yourself for meeting short-term goals.
- Track your progress: Keep track of each small success.
- Be flexible: If your current approach isn't working, reevaluate your strategies and develop a new plan.
- Have compassion for yourself: Don't beat yourself up if you don't meet your goals.
- Practice positive thinking: Remind yourself how your "bad behavior" will affect your goal.

Breckenridge Snow Sculptures

Breckenridge doesn't just host some of the state's best ski terrains during the snowy months, they also welcome the International Snow Sculpture Championships, one of the most interesting winter festivals around. This highly anticipated week-long event showcases 12 teams from around the world who battle it out to be crowned the best snow sculptors.

This is no ordinary contest. Each 4-person team must hand-carve 25-ton blocks of snow into massive sculpted works of art only using hand tools (no power tools are allowed!) to fashion their masterpieces.

During carving week, each team slowly brings their vision to life in preparation for viewing week. This is the time visitors have a chance to ogle at the completed sculpture displays. The creations aren't around for long though, as they are taken down on the last day of the event.

Where: Riverwalk Center in downtown Breckenridge

When: Monday-Wednesday, January 20-January 29, 2025

Favorite Snowed In Movies From Rotten Tomatoes

Let the Right One In (2008): Critics Consensus: Let the Right One In reinvigorates the seemingly tired vampire genre by effectively mixing scares with intelligent storytelling.

Groundhog Day (1993): Critics Consensus: Smart, sweet, and inventive, Groundhog Day highlights Murray's dramatic gifts while still leaving plenty of room for laughs.

Monsters, Inc. (2001): Critics Consensus: Clever, funny, and delightful to look at, Monsters, Inc. delivers another resounding example of how Pixar elevated the bar for modern all-ages animation.

The Crash Reel (2013): Critics Consensus: Smart, compassionate, and moving, The Crash Reel uses the familiar sport-doc formula to subvert expectations and ask challenging questions about ambition and achievement.

Snowpiercer (2013): Critics Consensus: Snowpiercer offers an audaciously ambitious action spectacular for filmgoers numb to effects-driven blockbusters.

March of the Penguins (2005): Critics Consensus: Only the most hardened soul won't be moved by this heartwarming doc.

Winter's Bone (2010): Critics Consensus: Bleak, haunting, and yet still somehow hopeful, Winter's Bone is writer-director Debra Granik's best work yet -- and it boasts an incredible, starmaking performance from Jennifer Lawrence.

Force majeure (2014): Critics Consensus: Gleefully uncomfortable, Force Majeure is a relationship drama that's hard to watch -- and just as difficult to ignore.

Touching the Void (2003): Critics Consensus: Gripping even though the outcome is known.

Fargo (1996): Critics Consensus: Violent, quirky, and darkly funny, Fargo delivers an original crime story and a wonderful performance by McDormand.

Inside Llewyn Davis (2013): Critics Consensus: Smart, funny, and profoundly melancholy, Inside Llewyn Davis finds the Coen brothers in fine form.

Eternal Sunshine of the Spotless Mind (2004): Critics Consensus: Propelled by Charlie Kaufman's smart, imaginative script and Michel Gondry's equally daring directorial touch, Eternal Sunshine is a twisty yet heartfelt look at relationships and heartache.

Bridge of Spies (2015): Critics Consensus: Bridge of Spies finds new life in Hollywood's classic Cold War espionage thriller formula, thanks to reliably outstanding work from Steven Spielberg and Tom Hanks.

Transsiberian (2008): Critics Consensus: Traditional in form yet effective in execution, this taut thriller updates the "danger on a train" scenario with atmospheric sense.

A Simple Plan (1998): Critics Consensus: A riveting crime thriller full of emotional tension.

Frozen (2013): Critics Consensus: Beautifully animated, smartly written, and stocked with singalong songs, Frozen adds another worthy entry to the Disney canon.
